

Virtual Machines, Volunteer Computing and the CernVM Project

Ben Segal

CERN, Switzerland

A short outline will be given of the BOINC Volunteer Computing technology applied to HEP. The LHC@home project for accelerator beam simulation will be described, together with its current extension to physics event simulation using virtualization, in combination with the CernVM project for virtual image management in the LHC experiment environments.

